

Gloria Moon

Prototypes of the new Shopping Cart page

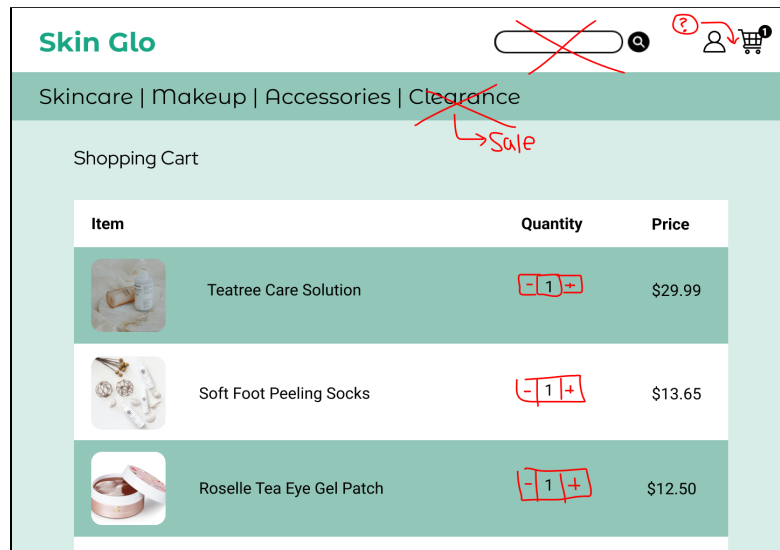

Previous prototype from A5:

Site Map:

Mockup Changes + Design Choices:

- First and most important, I added a quantity counter for the products so that users can change the number of items they want to purchase. This gives them user freedom and control as they have more power over what they can do when they want to.
- Additionally, I added a help section at the top so that users can learn more about the website if lost.
- Other small details include changing the language of the navigation bar from "clearance" to "sale" to give a more positive and happy mood. The other last change is that I removed the search bar as it took up space and added no value to the user currently.

Final Look:

